Domestic Violence Doesn't Discriminate

Having an Open Mind is Key to Helping Our Community

The harsh reality is that domestic abuse is happening all around us - to our friends, loved ones, co-workers and neighbors. People of all walks of life come to Emerge! for help and support. Domestic abuse has no boundaries within gender, religion, race, color, ethnicity, sexual orientation, economic status, age or disability. It can happen to anyone at any time. Read More >

Recent News

'Emerge! is Asking -- How Many More Are Currently Suffering?'

August 6, 2015 - A murder-suicide discovered by Tucson police earlier this month brought to light a harsh reality - on average, someone dies in Arizona every three days as a result of domestic violence.

Authorities believe that, after a recent breakup, Marc Florio shot and killed Natalie Beissel before using the gun to end his own life.
